Clever writing builds audience on WB

By John Crook
Tribune Media Services

Somehow it makes perfect sense that Lauren Graham spent part of her summer onstage in a revival of a 1930 Kaufman and Hart comedy.

"It's been awhile since I had done a play, and it was important to me to see whether I could still handle it," the actress says between performances of "Once in a Lifetime" in Williamstown, Mass.

"The first play I ever did in high school was a Kaufman and Hart play, 'The Man Who Came to Dinner,' and the TV show I do now owes a debt to this kind of writing, which is very smart and witty. My father read the play and said, 'You're playing another wise guy,' although it's a very different kind of energy."

During the main TV season, of course, Graham is best known for her portrayal of single mom Lorelai Gilmore in "Gilmore Girls," the critically acclaimed WB Network comedy-drama series that is steadily building the audience it deserves at 7 p.m. Tuesdays. (For the benefit of new fans, The WB will air "Gilmore" repeats from the first season on Sundays this fall as well).

As with any well-written series, the characters on "Gilmore Girls" have deepened and become more complex during the show's first two seasons, but from the very first episode the funny, prickly relationship between Lorelai and her precocious 16-year-old daughter, Rory (Alexis Bledel), popped right off the screen.

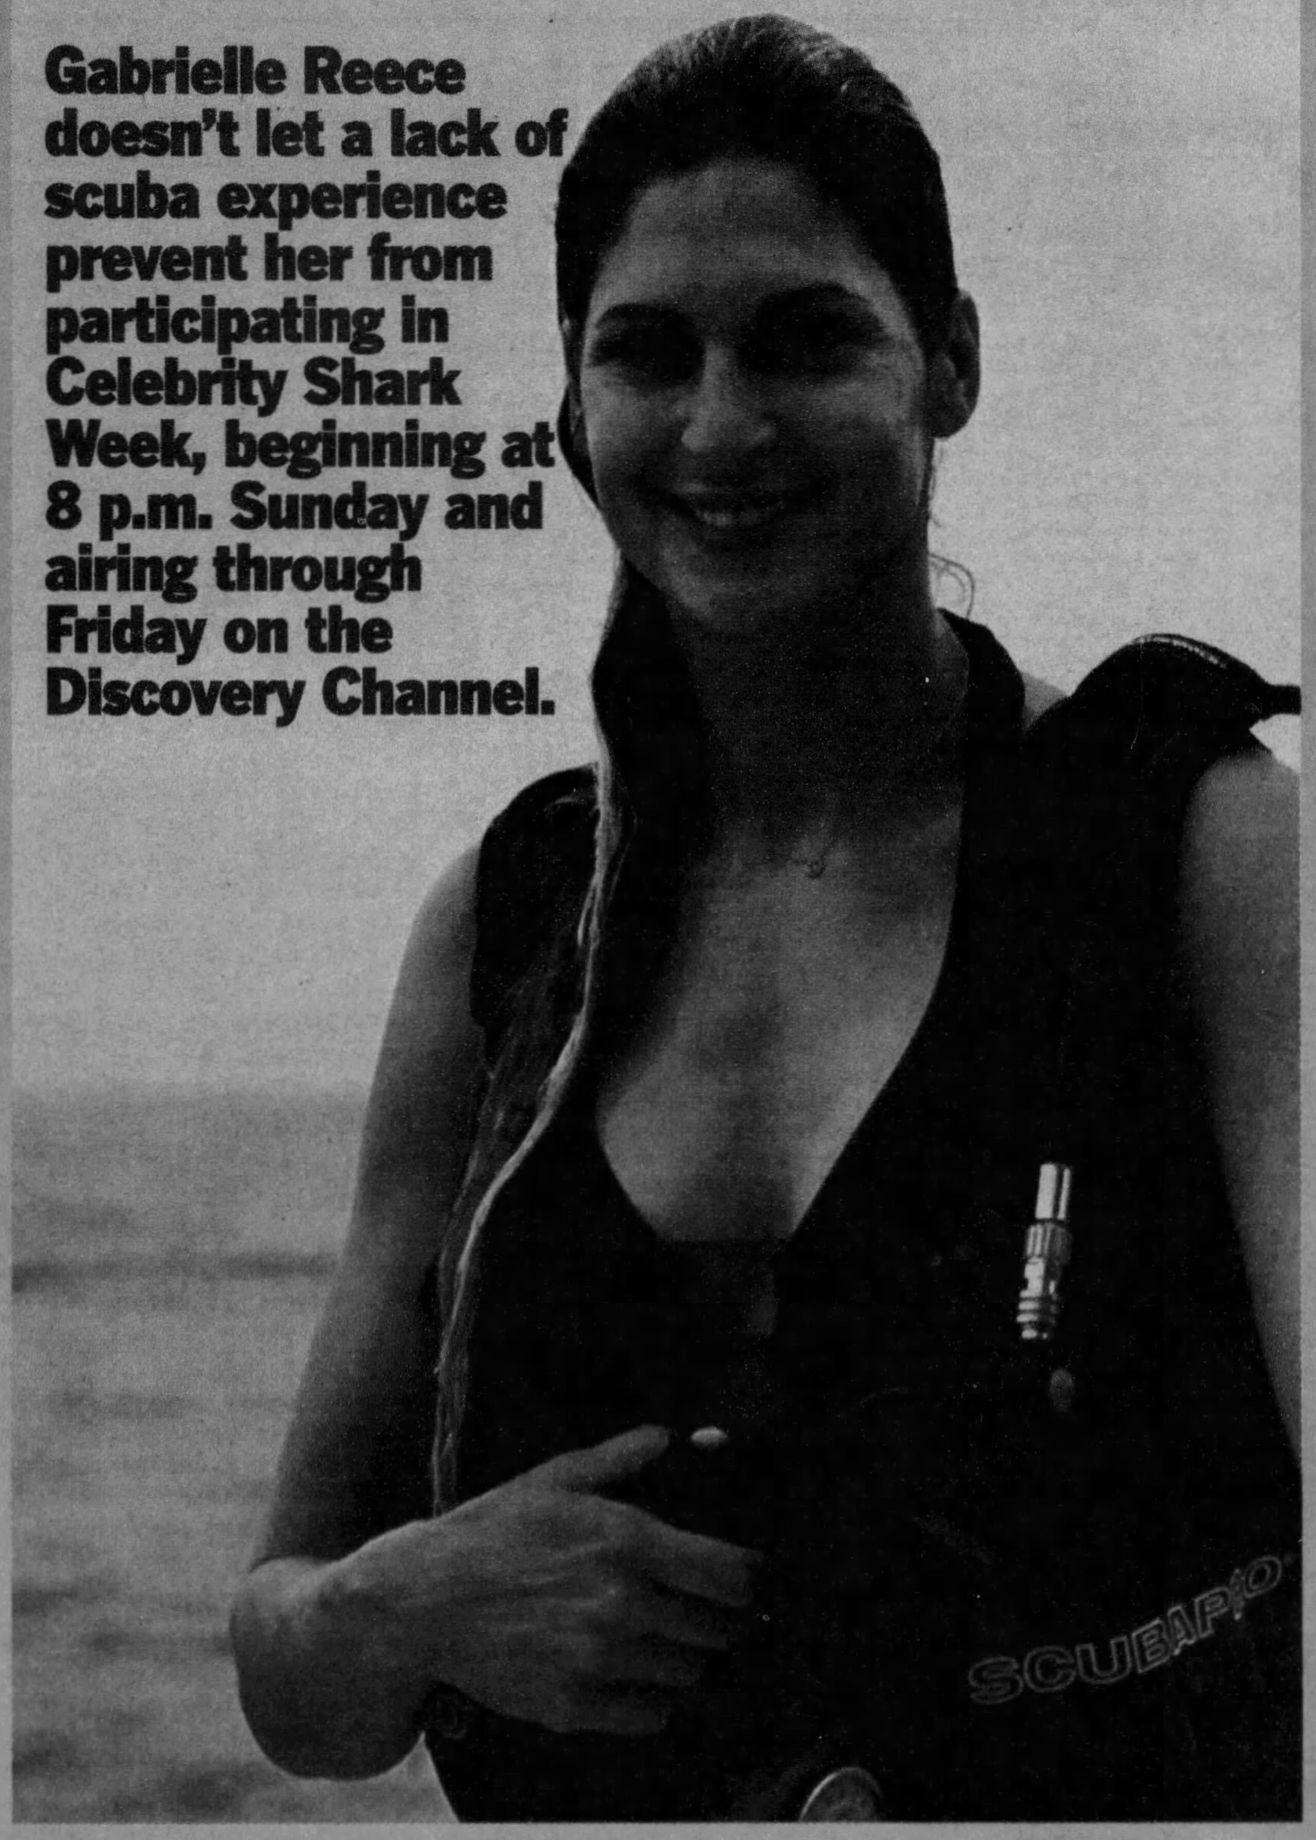
Gabrielle Reece doesn't let a lack of scuba experience prevent her from participating in Celebrity Shark Week, beginning at 8 p.m. Sunday and airing through Friday on the Discovery Channel.



Sharks dominate lineup for Discovery

By Monique Skotnicki

It's Gabrielle Reece's second time scuba diving and she's about to leap into a 300-foot-deep Bahamian blue hole teeming with nurse sharks.

"I'm going to put myself into the Zen state," says the volleyball superstar-turned-golfer. "I'm excited."

Reece's lack of deep-sea experience is news to the crew on hand to film her shark encounter for the 15th edition of Shark Week, airing Sunday through Friday, Aug. 11-16, on the Discovery Channel.

"I thought if I told (Discovery), they wouldn't let me come," she says nonchalantly.

"If you tell me exactly what you need, that's what I'll do," she reassures everyone. "I'll be fine."

This year marks the first time celebrities appear in intermittent short segments tying the programming together. Singers Mark McGrath (Sugar Ray) and Brian McKnight and actors Julie Bowen ("Ed"), David James Elliott ("J.A.G."), Adrian Pasdar ("Mysterious Ways"), Casper Van Dien ("Starship Troopers") and Estella Warren ("Planet of the Apes") are the other brave souls who have signed up for Celebrity Shark Week, which boasts six premieres in its lineup.

Reece's segments air before, during and after Sunday's "Air Jaws 2: Even Higher," an eye-popping exhibition of great whites jumping through the air. It immediately follows "Great White Attack: A True Story," about a series of attacks by great whites on the New Jersey coast in 1916.

Compelling story stars mother of 13

The Carters are a typical American family in more ways than most families would probably care to admit. The parents divorce, and the teen-age daughter takes to drugs.

How the family copes with the daughter's overdose makes for a compelling story. This fictional family, portrayed in Lifetime's "The Secret Life of Zoey," which premieres Monday, Aug. 19, is all too real.

"It is a horror story, and it is every mom's worst scenario," says Mia Farrow, who plays the mom, Marcia. Farrow certainly has the experience to know what a mother's nightmares are; she has 13 children.

"My oldest kids are all grown up, and I have grandchildren," Farrow says. "I only have six at home, including a newly turned 17-year-old daughter. And, I have a lot of friends with teen-age daughters. There is something to explore here."

Though the star of "Hannah and her Sisters" does not perform that frequently on television, she was drawn to this movie because of its public service aspect. "I really thought the trick would be to avoid cliches," Farrow says.

Zoey (Julia Whelan, "Once and Again") is a good girl. She earns excellent grades in high school, volunteers at a retirement home and is polite. She struggles, though, bouncing between her parents' households, a result of a joint custody agreement. She keeps her festering unhappiness to herself.

Marcia stayed home while Zoey was growing up and now wants to become an office manager. In the meantime, she helps her friend, Mimi (Caroline Aaron, "Joe Dirt"), by working as a receptionist at a beauty salon.

Marcia has come to terms with the divorce and believes that Zoey's life is on track. She is a good mother who nurtures her daughter, asks questions and listens to the answers. She does not know that Zoey is beginning to lead a double life.

Zoey begins by smoking marijuana, which leads to her pilfering her parents' prescription medications and results in her taking nearly lethal combinations of street pills.

4 nominations surprise singer

From across the country and around the world, they come together for excitement and kinship.

And maybe, just maybe, they'll leave holding MTV's most coveted prize.

Since 1984, music videos and their makers have been honored with "moonman" trophies at one of the most irreverent ceremonies in showbiz. Radio City Music Hall in New York is once again the setting when the music channel airs the 2002 MTV Video Music Awards Thursday, Aug. 29, a week earlier than usual. Jimmy Fallon ("Saturday Night Live") is the host.

The three-hour show is a gathering of established artists as well as a coming-out party for singers who have made their marks recently. This year's performers include rock legend Bruce Springsteen — and his E Street Band — and relative newcomer Shakira, who is celebrating her U.S. breakthrough after success in her native Latin America. Eminem, P. Diddy and Pink are also scheduled to take the stage, with Britney Spears, Elton John, Nelly and Bow Wow set to present awards.

"It was quite a surprise to find out I had gotten four MTV nominations," Colombian-born Shakira says of the reception to "Whenever, Wherever," her energetic American-debut video. "I didn't expect so many. I think it's going to be great for my career." She followed that tune — nominated for four Video Music Awards (best female video, best pop video, best dance video and best cinematography in a video) — with another hit, "Underneath Your Clothes," that also received substantial MTV play.
